

Russia's accession to the World Trade Organization

Abstract

The objective of the seminar is to discuss the process of Russia's accession to the World Trade Organization and its political and economic consequences.

The presentation will also aim at identifying Russia's social and economical situation upon the requesting, as well as WTO demands. An important actor in the field of international relations and a key energy supplier as Russia is, it may face less economical and technical requests/demands than political ones".